THE SECOND EDITION OF

A ROYAL GENEALOGICAL AND HISTORICAL

CHART OF WELSH HISTORY,

FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO OWEN CLYNDWR
AND KING HENRY VII.,

WITH MORE THAN FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTY REFERENCES TO EXISTING FAMILIES.

BY J. J. HARRIES HARRIS,

Of St. John's College Cambridge, and the College of Preceptors, London;
Head Master of the Grammar School, St. Asaph; Author of 'Birmingham Ecclesiastical & Scholastic,' the 'Schoolroom,' and other Works.

GENEALOGY COLLECTION

In this Chart (which has been prepared from authentic sources, and in many instances collated with manuscript and other authorities kindly offered by the Nobility and Gentry, and which embraces upwards of twelve hundred individuals,) the Descents, Alliances, and Issue of the Royal Dynasties of Wales are clearly and accurately shewn, and the principal historical events and dates connected with the life of each person are recorded. The connexion of the different noble Tribes and Families with the Royal Lines is exhibited, and the present representatives of the ancient pedigrees are named, whilst, by a novel and interesting arrangement, the rank of every individual is known at a glance, and the usually heavy and monotonous appearance of a Genealogical Table is avoided.

On the whole, it is hoped that this work (the result of the labour of many months), will be accepted as a useful and correct record of some of the ancient glories of the Principality; at the same time that from the high style of its execution and finish, it will become an ornamental appendage to the Hall, Library, and Parlour of the Nobility, Gentry, Clergy, and Inhabitants of Wales and the neighbouring English Counties.

Gentlemen are requested to send their names to MR. HARRIS, as it is not intended in the first instance to issue the work through the Booksellers, unless specially appointed as Agents.

Cunortus Provinces at Rome at the time the death of Llewelyn Llywelyn and severe laws were enacted by the English Monarchs but these were gradually repealed especially passed the Great Statute which Wales was incorporated with England on the agreement of equal rights, privileges and laws.

The earliest Genealogies and in fact Historical events connected with the in Brutus a descendant of Eurus who 1100 BC is said to have landed and the Soverigns which at his death he left amongst his three Sons much to the first of whom he gave England thence called Legoria or called Cambria, and to the third Scotland in like manner desirous to King Arthur are preserved the names of St. Brendan Pythamus. These are omitted here and the Genealogies are made to commence about 2 years before Caesar's invasion because most if not all the British History can be traced from him. By this arrangement the mutual connection of individuals is shown in a manner which has not it is believed been given that any error or quasi error from which a work of this magnitude and scope to be exempt will be pointed out to the Author, who gladly avails himself to convey the expression of his thanks to those Gentlemen and Gentlemen who have so kindly permitted to call
